

Hunt Club Activates Expert Network, Reaching a Community of 20k Finance Managers to Find and Hire Glorify's Newest Leader

Glorify is a non-denominational Christian daily worship & well-being app that creates space and structure for its users to connect with God and their community every day. Christians around the world are guided through bite-sized worship routines to strengthen their relationship with God and recharge their spiritual journey every day.

Between 2016 and 2020, faith-based technologies, also known as faithtech, saw close to a 700% increase in venture funding. Noticing an organic gap in the market, Glorify built a technically superb product, making its waves in the faithtech industry. Since its launch, Glorify has garnered upwards of over 5 million downloads worldwide. The company's promise can be seen in its investments, raising over $84 million from investors like a16z, SoftBank LATAM, Kris Jenner, Michael Ovitz, Michael Bubl  , and more.

The Challenge

After raising $84M in funding, led by Andreessen Horowitz, the Glorify team partnered with Hunt Club to source and hire a Finance Manager to help establish the finance operations in the U.S. ahead of opening an office there. Glorify wanted a candidate who was:

- An ambitious individual who had a strong accounting background.
- Able to calibrate and own the financial department at their North American office.
- Excited by the opportunity to learn and grow in the new role as the company evolves.

Hunt Club's Bullseye Candidate

Educational prowess was the name of the game with the winning candidate. Their Master's Degree from Claremont School of Theology was directly in-line with the company's vision.

Additionally, the candidate's experience growing start-ups gave them the background Glorify was looking for as they began their expansion overseas.

Hired a Finance Manager, United States in 56 days!

"We didn't want to compromise on building a remarkable team with a healthy and diverse culture [...] We knew we wanted to hire the candidate that we would personally recommend to a good friend's company. With the help of Hunt Club, we were able to do just that."
